Risk Factors: Upon issuance of the Notes, the Notes will not have an established trading market. We cannot assure holders of the Notes that a trading market will ever develop for the Notes, or, if one develops, that it will be maintained. In addition to our creditworthiness, many factors can affect the trading market for the Notes and their trading value. These factors include: (i) the method of calculating the principal and interest in respect of the Notes, (ii) the time remaining to the maturity of the Notes, (iii) the total outstanding amount of any particular issuance of Notes or of our medium term notes in total, (iv) the redemption features of the Notes, if any, and (v) the level, direction and volatility of interest rates in general and for securities like the Notes, in particular.

We may choose to redeem the Notes on or after the redemption date indicated on the cover hereof. In the event that the prevailing interest rates are relatively low when we choose to redeem the Notes, the holders of the Notes may not be able to reinvest the redemption proceeds in a comparable security with a yield as high as that of the Notes being redeemed. Our ability to redeem the Notes before the maturity date may affect the market value of the Notes at any time when potential purchasers believe that we are likely to redeem Notes.

The credit ratings of our senior unsubordinated indebtedness, which includes the Notes, may not reflect the potential impact of all risks related to any trading market for the Notes or their trading value. In addition, changes or anticipated changes in our credit ratings generally will affect any trading market for the Notes or their trading value.
