Economic Outlook

The following slides contain forward looking statements. Refer to disclaimer on page 82

Global economy strong and only marginally weaker in 2006

Global Forecasts - Annual Growth %

Global growth strong

Growth underpinned by US, China and India

Inflationary concerns remain

Upward bias on rate rises

European growth to remain sluggish

Economic outlook

Economic outlook differs across key markets: But overall reasonable

GDP picking up in Australia and the UK in 2006, but slower in New Zealand,

In 2006 we expect GDP growth of 3 ¼ % in Australia, 2 ¼ % in UK, but only 1 ¼ % in New Zealand. In 2007 GDP, in both Australia and the UK, is expected to marginally strengthen but little improvement is expected in New Zealand.

Overall credit growth in 2006 across our key markets much the same as in 2005 (around 13 %) but the mix somewhat changed with business credit stronger than personal and household credit. Moderately slower credit growth in 2007 (to around 10 ½ %) - mainly due to moderately weaker demand in Australia (and especially business).

Underlying inflation expected to move higher in Australia and to remain high in New Zealand for some time. UK outlook little changed. Rates expected to begin to fall in late 2006 in New Zealand (given weak economic outlook) but to remain unchanged in the UK.

In Australia, rates likely to be on hold following RBA's recent moves - but risks clearly still up. Outcomes very data dependent and will need to reflect no acceleration in wages and the eventuation of an expected slowing in domestic demand over 2006/07 (following the re-acceleration in early 2006).

Macro risks to outlook estimates

Geo politics - Both political, oil & trade tensions overhang the outlook.

New Zealand s Economic Outlook is hard to read with significant volatility in the currency and rate expectations. That could well continue.

In Australia, New Zealand and UK household leverage high household gearing, leaves some consumers vulnerable to higher interest rates and or an unexpected loss of jobs. For Australia (and to a lesser extent the UK) the risks probably relate more to higher than expected interest rates. For New Zealand the risks revolve more about delays to rate cuts in an environment of still overvalued house prices and below trend growth.

Commodity prices are very high and providing a significant boost to Australian incomes and equity markets. Our forecasts involve only moderate further upside in 2006 followed by a moderate correction in 2007. Extreme movements in either direction could considerably complicate policy responses and economic outcomes in Australia.

Oil prices have remained stubbornly high. Those effects have to some extent been masked by wealth effects: including equity markets (Australia) and house prices (NZ and the USA). Further hikes in oil could bring about powerful global headwinds to growth especially if wealth effects wain faster than expected

Bird flu Likely to be contained, albeit watch for human pandemic.
