Filed by E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company

Pursuant to Rule 425 under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and deemed filed pursuant to Rule 14a-12

under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended

Subject Company: The Dow Chemical Company; E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company

Commission File No.: 001- 00815

From: Ed Breen, DuPont Chair & CEO

Dear Colleagues:

Today, we announced the U.S. site structure for the independent Agriculture company we intend to create after our merger with Dow.

As you know, the intended Agriculture company will be a U.S.-based global leader, with the scale and breadth necessary to deliver greater value and choice for growers worldwide and compete against the largest companies in the world. Our combined, complementary capabilities will make the intended company stronger, more competitive, more resilient and better equipped to deliver growth and value than either DuPont or Dow could deliver on its own. We intend to bring a broader suite of products to the market, faster, so we can be even better partners to growers, meeting and exceeding their expectations for innovation and helping them to increase their productivity and profitability.

To leverage all of its strengths and opportunities, the combined Agriculture company will have three primary locations:

- Wilmington, Delaware, will serve as the corporate headquarters for the global Agriculture business, housing our principal executive offices, which include the office of the CEO and key corporate support functions.
- Johnston, Iowa, and Indianapolis, Indiana, will serve as Global Business Centers, with leadership of business lines, business support functions, R&D, global supply chain, and sales and marketing capabilities in these locations.

The press release [hyperlink to material filed with the SEC pursuant to Rule 425 on February 19, 2016] we issued today provides a high level summary of our decisions, but I'd highlight that the headquarters location selection allows us to leverage our existing corporate infrastructure and expertise in Delaware — DuPont's home for more than 200 years. Our deep roots in the state and the incredibly talented and committed people we have here create a unique operating environment for DuPont. The intended combined company also has historic ties to Iowa and Indiana, and maintaining a strong presence in those locations will further support critical connections to our customer base and the broader Ag community. Importantly, this structure enhances our ability to retain our experienced people from DuPont Pioneer, DuPont Crop Protection, and Dow AgroSciences.

This structure also ensures the cost discipline and efficiency necessary to achieve the synergies we have committed to, while establishing the strongest foundation possible for sustainable growth over the long term — which will in turn create long term opportunities for our global employee base and our local communities.

We also decided that the intended Agriculture company will feature DuPont in the company's name, and the Pioneer brand, recognized by customers around the world, will continue to play a central role in the brand architecture of the combined company. A corporate naming and branding process for the intended new company is currently underway.

Today's announcement brings more clarity to our ongoing integration planning. Along with the decision to identify Wilmington as our Ag company headquarters, we're also re-affirming that Wilmington will be the headquarters for our intended Specialty Products company, and the intended Material Science company will be headquartered in Midland, Michigan.

The senior leadership team and I will continue to give you regular updates on our plan and progress. In the meantime, we can succeed together by continuing to adhere to our Core Values and keeping a sharp focus on the marketplace—staying close to customers as we deliver the innovative solutions and quality they expect from DuPont.

Thank you for your commitment and support,

Ed
