PEO Opportunity

In 1999 the PEO industry collectively served approximately 3.5 million work site employees in the United States. The target market for the PEO industry are companies with less than 100 employees. According to the United States Small Business Administration (SBA), the nation has over 6 million small businesses, representing over 99% of all businesses. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, small businesses are the fastest growing segment of the U.S. employment and commerce. Small businesses employ nearly one-half of the United States workforce, generating an estimated annual payroll of $1.4 trillion.

Despite their position in the business market, small businesses and emerging growth companies face several major obstacles that impede their opportunity for growth and success. These obstacles include lack of capital, professional management, and other critical operating infrastructure systems. In many sectors, dominated by large multinational competitors, smaller businesses find it difficult to attract financial resources, service providers, and quality employees. Further challenges to the small business and emerging growth companies are regulatory and compliance requirements of federal, state, and local government agencies.

Edgar Filing: PACEL CORP - Form 8-K

A PEO offers a broad range of integrated and cost effective personnel management services to the small business community. Typically the PEO firm manages payroll and human resource functions and provides administration of health, unemployment and workers compensation insurance for its clients. This usually takes the form of the PEO hiring the staff of a client, then "leasing back" staffing services to the client. Often referred to as "co-employment", the PEO contractually assumes substantial employer rights, responsibilities, and risks and establishes long-term, employer relationships with its client's employees. Under a co-employment arrangement, both the PEO and the client have an employment relationship with work site employees. The PEO and client allocate some responsibilities, and share others. Under the terms of this co-employment relationship the PEO assumes responsibility for:

- o Payroll and employment taxes
- o Employee benefits
- o Human resource compliance
- o Workers' compensation, workplace safety, and risk management
- o Employee appraisal services
- o Personnel records management
- o Employer liability management
- o Employee recruiting, screening and selection
- o Performance management
- o Training and development services

The client retains sole responsibility for such key business functions as product development, distribution, marketing, sales and service. In this way, the client manages the specific work product of the employee, while the PEO manages the human resource and regulatory aspects. This allows the client businesses to shift legal risk and lower administrative costs, at the same time freeing the entrepreneur to develop the business rather than deal with human resource and regulatory issues. Additionally, employees receive better benefits through lower insurance rates, and a full range of services typically sacrificed by smaller employers.

The asset purchase of MRG California, LLC contracts establishes a regional PEO presence in California for PACEL and represents a major step toward realizing the opportunities that have been identified in the PEO industry.
