Merger Integration Planning Progress

An Integration Management Office (IMO) has been established to guide day-to-day integration design and planning and to ensure interdependencies and risks are identified and that mitigation plans are developed. The IMO has established an overall integration methodology and schedule, with clear governance guidelines.

Twelve integration planning teams, co-led by senior leaders of both companies, have been formed with the goal of ensuring business continuity, customer and talent retention and synergy attainment.

7 CEO Reactions Neil Austrian Ravi Saligram 7

We recognize that the synergy benefits are an important part of the shareholder value that is being created from this merger and I m very pleased with the tangible momentum of the integration planning process so far, said Neil Austrian, Chairman and CEO of Office Depot.

The talent and dedication of the teams working on the integration gives us confidence that the combined company will deliver on our promise to build a stronger, more efficient competitor positioned to meet the growing challenges of a rapidly changing industry. We remain optimistic that the merger will close by the end of the 2013 calendar year, and we continue to work cooperatively with the FTC as it conducts its review of the proposed combination.

We are extremely pleased with the progress we are making in our integration planning, which will ensure a smooth transition for all of our stakeholders and allow us to begin capturing identified cost synergies starting on Day One, said Ravi Saligram, President and CEO of OfficeMax.

True to the spirit of our merger of equals structure, objective decisions aimed at identifying the best systems and processes for the combined company are being made at an appropriate pace. I have been particularly impressed with the expertise and collaboration demonstrated by integration team members of both companies, and my confidence level in attainment of our synergies is even higher now.
