Dear Shareholder:

While global economic growth was far from robust, there were signs of improvement in a number of countries during the fiscal six-month reporting period ended August 31, 2013. Against this backdrop, US equities generated strong results, while bond prices were pressured by rising interest rates.

Six Months in Review through August 31, 2013

n AllianzGI Convertible & Income Fund returned 8.60% on net asset value ( NAV ) and 6.58% on market price.

n AllianzGI Convertible & Income Fund II returned 8.72% on NAV and 7.20% on market price.

In comparison, the Standard & Poor's ( S&P ) 500 Index, an unmanaged index generally representative of the US stock market, rose 8.95% and the Barclays US Credit Index, an unmanaged index considered representative of publicly issued, Securities & Exchange Commission ( SEC ) registered US corporate and specific foreign debentures and secured notes, declined 3.53% during the six-month reporting period. Convertible securities, which share characteristics of both stocks and bonds, rose. The BofA Merrill Lynch All Convertibles Index, an unmanaged index generally representative of the convertible securities market, advanced 8.64% for the period.

During the reporting period, the United States experienced choppy, but continued growth. Gross domestic product ( GDP ), the value of goods and services produced in the country, the broadest measure of economic activity and the principal indicator of economic performance, grew at an annual pace of 0.1% during the fourth quarter of 2012, as private inventory investment and federal government spending moderated. GDP growth rose to 1.1% during the first quarter of 2013. According to the second estimate from the US Commerce Department, GDP growth increased to a 2.5% annual pace during the second quarter of 2013.

Although US economic data was mixed at times, there were continued signs of the long-awaited recovery in the housing market. In addition, while unemployment remained elevated, the unemployment rate dropped from 7.7% in February 2013 to 7.3% in August 2013.

With unemployment falling and some signs of improving economic activity the Federal Reserve (the Fed ) announced its intention to begin tapering its monthly $85 billion asset purchase program. This triggered sharply rising yields and declining bond prices. The yield on the benchmark 10-year US Treasury bond rose from 1.89% at the beginning of the reporting period to 2.78% at August 31, 2013. While long-term rates have increased, the Fed has indicated that it intends to maintain the Fed Funds rate in the 0.0% to 0.25% range as long as the unemployment rate remains above 6.5%, provided that inflations remain well contained.

Outlook

Market volatility increased sharply toward the end of the fiscal reporting period. This was partially triggered by concerns regarding the Fed's plans to taper its asset purchase program and slower global growth.

We expect the Fed's policy stance to remain accommodative, even if it begins to taper its purchase program sooner rather than later. Fed tapering is likely to create greater volatility, but we expect the Fed will only raise interest rates if it is confident the economic recovery is on solid footing. Concerns of higher interest rates impacting the housing market, geopolitical issues and an impasse in Congress regarding the raising of the debt ceiling may also contribute to market volatility.

With respect to the US economy, an important factor going forward will be consumer spending, as it comprises in excess of two-thirds of GDP. While the global financial crisis of 2008-2009 has had a significant impact on consumers' mindset, auto and retail sales have been generally solid. In addition, it appears that as the employment situation improves, consumer confidence will likely rise and spending should follow. This could help drive the economy during the remainder of the year and into 2014.

Fund Insights

AllianzGI Convertible & Income Funds

August 31, 2013 (unaudited)

For the period of March 1, 2013, through August 31, 2013 as provided by Doug Forsyth, Portfolio Manager.

For the fiscal six-month period ended August 31, 2013, AllianzGI Convertible & Income Fund and AllianzGI Convertible & Income Fund II (the Funds) returned 8.60% and 8.72% on net asset value (NAV) and 6.58% and 7.20% on market price, respectively.

Market Environment

The factors contributing to the convertible and high-yield market's positive returns varied during the period. In April and May 2013, the market moved higher as first-quarter corporate profits for most companies exceeded expectations. In June, however, the markets pulled back. What had been perceived by investors as a unilaterally accommodative global monetary policy had been tempered by the language, not the actions, of the US Federal Reserve (the Fed). The Fed's statements in June rattled the markets in general, but also specifically impacted longer-dated Treasuries. As 2013 has demonstrated, Treasury rates can move on the long end of the curve well ahead of the stated 2015 target for Fed funds rate changes.

The convertible and high-yield markets outperformed fixed-income asset classes during the six-month period due to their low and even negative correlations with interest rates. Typically, a backup in rates positively impacts the convertible and high yield markets, particularly when due to an improving economy. However, because of the more widespread negative reaction to the Fed's statement by both the equity and fixed-income markets, most convertible bonds traded down in June. This knee-jerk reaction faded toward the end of the month, as a more normalized response to rising rates materialized among the aforementioned asset classes.

Markets rebounded during July 2013, but reversed course in August. Initially, better-than-expected second-quarter corporate profits, rising consumer confidence and a strengthening US economy helped support an advance that lifted equity markets to new highs for the year. In August, the convertible and high-yield markets declined alongside equities, but to a lesser degree. Speculation on the timing of monetary stimulus tapering and a further rise in interest rates pressured investor sentiment. However, against this backdrop of macro-related risks, issuer fundamentals on average continued to improve on average the reporting period.

Portfolio Specifics

The Funds rallied with the markets during the reporting period. Strength was evident in a variety of holdings and industries.

In the convertibles sleeve, sector allocations which benefitted performance in the period relative to the convertibles universe were Industrials, Energy, Media, Transportation and Materials. Stronger issuer-specific performance was evident across all of the aforementioned sectors, but greatest among Industrials and Energy. Additionally, the Funds benefited from an underweighting in Materials. Conversely, sector allocations which hindered relative performance in the reporting period included Healthcare, Utilities and Financials. An underweighting and security selection in Healthcare negatively impacted relative performance. Furthermore, an overweighting in Utilities and relative underperformance detracted from returns. An overweighting in Financials also hindered relative returns.

In the high yield bond sleeve, industry allocations which benefitted performance in the period relative to the high yield universe were Publishing/Printing, Energy, Services and Diversified Financial Services. All of the aforementioned industries exhibited strong security selection. Additionally, an overweighting in Publishing/Printing positively impacted relative performance. In contrast, industry allocations which hindered relative performance during the period included Gaming, Chemicals and Broadcasting. An underweighting in Chemicals was a drag on relative performance, while weaker issuer-specific performance was evident across the Gaming and Broadcasting sectors.

(1) Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Total return is calculated by determining the percentage change in NAV or market price (as applicable) in the specified period. The calculation assumes that all dividends and distributions, if any, have been reinvested. Total return does not reflect broker commissions or sales charges in connection with the purchase or sale of Fund shares. Total return for a period of more than one year represents the average annual total return. Total return for a period of less than one year is not annualized.

Performance at market price will differ from results at NAV. Although market price returns typically reflect investment results over time, during shorter periods returns at market price can also be influenced by factors such as changing views about the Fund, market conditions, supply and demand for each Fund's shares, or changes in each Fund's dividends.

Edgar Filing: AllianzGI Convertible & Income Fund - Form N-CSRS

An investment in each Fund involves risk, including the loss of principal. Total return, market price, market price yield and NAV will fluctuate with changes in market conditions. This data is provided for information purposes only and is not intended for trading purposes. Closed-end funds, unlike open-end funds, are not continuously offered. There is a one time public offering and once issued, shares of closed-end funds are traded in the open market through a stock exchange. NAV is equal to total assets attributable to common shareholders less total liabilities divided by the number of common shares outstanding. Holdings are subject to change daily.

(2) Market Price Yield is determined by dividing the annualized current monthly per common share dividend (comprised of net investment income) by the market price per common share at August 31, 2013.

(3) Represents Preferred Shares ( Leverage ) outstanding, as a percentage of total managed assets. Total managed assets refer to total assets (including assets attributable to Leverage) minus liabilities (other than liabilities representing Leverage).
