FAQs

What does the legal close date mean? The legal close date refers to the day that KeyBank and First Niagara become one company. A number of critical actions must happen beforehand, including review of the proposed merger by the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice.

What is the merger integration process and timeline?

The KeyBank and First Niagara Transition Leadership Teams will follow a disciplined methodology in order to combine these two organizations. There are four phases to the process:

The first phase involves formation of the merger integration teams, and that phase is now complete.

The second phase assessment has just launched, and will continue until the legal close date, when KeyBank and First Niagara become one company. In this phase, we will analyze the current environment (how both companies conduct business today), determine the target environment (how we will run the company once we have merged), and conduct detailed integration planning, which will help us plan for the third phase.

In the implementation phase, we will execute the plans developed during the assessment phase. We anticipate the implementation phase will take place between the legal close date and mid-2017.

And finally, there will be a wind down phase when certain transition activities become business as usual.

When will decisions be communicated to employees?

The Transition Leadership Team will make decisions frequently and communication will be integral to the merger process. The team is committed to communicating what we know, when we know it.

Will there be a talent assessment process to select First Niagara employees for jobs in the new combined organization?

KeyBank and First Niagara will work together to assess talent and make selection decisions in areas where there are duplicate roles. This same thoughtful and structured process will take place across the organization. A core principle of the merger process is that employees will be treated with respect and given timely communication regarding decisions that affect them.

Will the talent assessment process also determine position placements in branches that remain open?

Yes, the same process will apply for all business units and departments at First Niagara.

Will there be a preferential job posting program for impacted employees looking at KeyBank jobs across the country?

A fundamental priority of the merger is to find job placement for as many impacted employees as possible. Thus, there will be a redeployment process to facilitate matching the skills and experience of impacted employees with applicable open positions.

What does it mean to be offered a comparable position?

In some cases, an employee may be offered a comparable job that is not the exact job that is held currently. A comparable position is one:

That offers a compensation opportunity (base salaries, wages, incentives, long-term incentives) that is similar to the most recent compensation opportunity;

That requires substantially comparable skills and abilities and the same full-time/part-time status as did the pre-close position;

That is at a location within 40 miles of the employee's current place of employment; and

For which the employee holds the minimum qualifications.

Will I still receive my distribution from the terminated Employee Stock Ownership (ESOP) Plan?

Yes, you will receive your distribution from the terminated ESOP Plan, whether you are employed with First Niagara or not, once the plan termination has been approved by the IRS. More details will be forthcoming once we receive approval from the IRS to proceed with the distribution process. If we do not receive approval prior to the merger's legal close date, outstanding shares will convert to KeyBank shares in accordance with the merger agreement and KeyBank will facilitate the distribution process.

I am eligible for the First Niagara or NewAlliance Pension Plan. What happens to this benefit?

Both pension plans will transfer to KeyBank, and any benefit you have earned under either plan will remain until you commence payment.

Will I still be eligible for tuition reimbursement?

Approved courses that are in process prior to the merger's legal close date will be eligible for reimbursement. KeyBank also has an Education Assistance Program and more information will be shared about all benefits programs after the Assessment Phase.

Does KeyBank's medical plan allow spouses?

Key's 2016 Medical Plan offers employee only, spouse, child(ren) and family coverage plans. Review of all benefits programs will occur during the Assessment Phase.
