Elaine Wynn Comments on ISS Recommendation that Wynn Resorts Stockholders “WITHHOLD” Their Votes for Company’s Nominees

Leading Proxy Advisory Firm Expresses Dissatisfaction with the Board’s Questionable Commitment to Good Governance Practices in Recommendation to Withhold Votes from John J. Hagenbuch and J. Edward Virtue

Elaine Wynn Encourages Stockholders to Protect Their Investment by Voting on the GOLD Card

LAS VEGAS – April 5, 2015 – Elaine Wynn, co-founder, Board member and third-largest stockholder of Wynn Resorts, Limited (NASDAQ: WYNN) ("Wynn Resorts" or "the Company") today commented on the recommendation from Institutional Shareholder Service (“ISS”), a leading independent proxy advisory service, that Wynn stockholders WITHHOLD their vote for management’s nominees for the Wynn Resorts Board of Directors (“the Board”) at the upcoming 2015 Annual Meeting. In response, Elaine Wynn has issued the following statement:

“I believe the stockholders of Wynn Resorts deserve better than the choices presented to them by the Company this proxy season, and the only way to achieve meaningful value creation for my fellow stockholders is to vote the GOLD card FOR my reelection at the upcoming Annual Meeting. The ISS report raises a number of important concerns about the performance of the Board. I firmly believe my judgment, considerable experience, important diversity and willingness to challenge the status quo makes me the best positioned candidate to guard and grow stockholders’ interest and identify additional diverse candidates with independent voices.”

“As the third largest stockholder, my interests inextricably align with my fellow stockholders, giving me a unique perspective on protecting and increasing the value of our collective investment in the future. The Company, by contrast, continues to disseminate comments designed to obscure the truth, as they did tonight in their statement on the ISS recommendation, and it is my hope that other stockholders recognize my value and vote FOR my reelection using the GOLD proxy card TODAY. ”

Ms. Wynn noted several important conclusions reached by ISS in its analysis, including:

Wynn Resorts Board of Directors had ample time and failed to address diversity issues.

Company nominees Hagenbuch, who is a member of the Compensation Committee, and Virtue, who chairs that committee, appear to bear direct responsibility for continued concerns over the compensation of Steve Wynn.

The Company's decision not to re-nominate Elaine is in direct contrast to the trend among S&P 500 companies to increase Board diversity.

The process by which the Board approached its decision to remove Elaine appears to have had a very short fuse, a notion underscored by the fact that the Board was unprepared with a suitable replacement, and forced to shrink the Board instead.

ISS questions why, if concerns had been building since 2012, did the Corporate Governance Committee not prepare for this eventuality by conducting, sometime during the past three years, the director search it now commits to complete in the next nine months?

As previously announced, Elaine has filed a proxy statement with a GOLD proxy card with the SEC in order to solicit votes for her re-nomination to the Board. Wynn Resorts stockholders can vote for Elaine by returning the GOLD proxy card or instruction form physically or by voting online or by telephone.
