Item 1.01. Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement.

On July 13, 2009, pursuant to the terms of the Research Collaboration and License Agreement (the Agreement) dated October 12, 2005 between Alnylam Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (Alnylam) and Novartis Institutes for BioMedical Research, Inc. (Novartis), Novartis elected to further extend the term of the Agreement for one additional year through October 12, 2010. The Agreement had an initial term of three years, with an option for two additional one-year extensions at the election of Novartis. In July 2008, Novartis elected to extend the initial term through October 2009. Following this current second extension, the Agreement will continue until October 2010. The election to extend the Agreement by Novartis does not result in any other changes to the existing terms and conditions of the Agreement.

Under the terms of the Agreement, the parties agreed to work together on selected gene targets, as defined in the Agreement, to discover and develop therapeutics based on RNA interference (RNAi). The Agreement also includes terms under which Novartis will provide Alnylam with research funding and milestone payments as well as royalties on annual net sales of products resulting from the Agreement, if any. For RNAi therapeutic products successfully developed under the Agreement, if any, Alnylam would be entitled to receive milestone payments upon achievement of certain specified development and annual net sales events.

Under the terms of the Agreement, Alnylam retains the right to discover, develop, commercialize and manufacture compounds that function through the mechanism of RNAi, or products that contain such compounds as an active ingredient, with respect to targets not selected by Novartis for inclusion in the collaboration, provided that Novartis has a right of first offer with respect to an exclusive license for additional targets before Alnylam partners any of those additional targets with third parties.

The Agreement also provides Novartis with a non-exclusive option to integrate into its operations Alnylam s intellectual property relating to RNAi technology, excluding any technology related to delivery of nucleic acid-based molecules (the Integration Option). Novartis may exercise this non-exclusive Integration Option at any point during the research term, which term now expires in October 2010. In connection with the exercise of the Integration Option, Novartis would be required to make additional payments to Alnylam. In addition, under this license grant, Novartis may be required to make additional milestone and royalty payments to Alnylam in connection with the successful development and commercialization of RNAi therapeutic products, if any.

Novartis may terminate the Agreement in the event that Alnylam materially breaches its obligations. Alnylam may terminate the Agreement with respect to particular programs, products and/or countries in the event of specified material breaches by Novartis of its obligations, or in its entirety under specified circumstances for multiple such breaches.

This summary description of the Agreement does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the Agreement, which was attached as Exhibit 10.1 to the Current Report on Form 8-K previously filed by Alnylam with the Securities and Exchange Commission on October 12, 2005.
