On August 13, 2014, Integrys Energy Group, Inc. (“Integrys”) posted the following information on Integrys’s intranet site for its employees about the Form S-4 filing made by Wisconsin Energy Corporation:

Under “Regulatory Filings” (revised from Commission Filings) on the transaction site

8/13/14: Form S-4 was filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) today as another step in the transaction process. The filing contains comprehensive information related to the merger transaction between WEC and TEG. It’s designed to provide shareholders with the business and financial information required by the SEC for the shareholder to make a decision on the proposed transaction.

The S-4 includes a preliminary joint proxy statement of TEG and WEC and a prospectus of WEC. This filing is the first step in obtaining SEC clearance of the document. Once clearance is obtained, a definitive joint proxy statement will be filed with the SEC and mailed to the shareholders of TEG and WEC seeking TEG shareholder approval of the proposed merger transaction at a special meeting of TEG shareholders and WEC stockholder approval of the issuance of WEC stock in the proposed merger transaction at a special meeting of WEC stockholders. Preliminary information about these special meetings, the merger and the other business to be considered by shareholders is contained in the S-4 filing made today and final information will be contained in the definitive joint proxy statement/prospectus.

The rules issued by the SEC under Section 14A of the Exchange Act require Integrys to seek a non-binding, advisory vote with respect to merger-related compensation. As a result, the proxy statement provides comprehensive and detailed information related to director and executive officer compensation.

The Integrys Board of Directors is responsible for executive compensation and they regularly consult with compensation experts for market information and advice. This information is used to structure payment and benefit levels that are competitive in the marketplace.

You can see the complete filing on the SEC’s website.

The data included in the proxy statement is not self-explanatory and may be misleading or misinterpreted if it is viewed without reading the explanation or context provided. If you have questions, talk with your executive leader, who has been provided additional information. If you have addition questions, send them to CorpCommunications@integrygroup.com.
