BUSINESS REPORT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001

(Jan. 1, 2001 to Dec. 31, 2001)

1. Business Review of Fiscal 2001

(1) Overview of 2001 Results

During 2001, IT demand has been sluggish in Japan, the U.S. and Europe, for example, there has been a reduction of corporate investment in IT. The influence of such investment reduction has begun to reach the network security area, which has previously been considered a high priority IT investment. Thus, the circumstances surrounding the Group have been increasingly harsh. The survey of October 2001 conducted by Information Security, a U.S. company, reported the result that approximately one-third of the companies subject to the survey have frozen their network security-related investments for 2001 because of the deterioration of economic conditions, and this is most prevalent in North America.

However, many companies have not changed their basic policies to continuously expand investment in the promotion of networking, the review of core business systems, and others. Therefore, although short-term fluctuations are shown, there is no change in the prospect that our industry will steadily grow in the long and medium terms. In addition, recently there are new types of viruses which automatically attack the existing weakness in a computer through the Internet. This causes damage, which is typified by viruses such as "Code Red," programmed to attack the White House, or "Nimda," having a number of attacking methods: Such new viruses are characterized as having higher infection ability compared to conventional viruses. Therefore, users are demanding network security vendors for more effective products and services more than ever before.

The report of the Information-technology Promotion Agency, Japan (IPA), shows that the damage caused by viruses has also been increasing in Japan, including the fact that the number of reports of found viruses in 2001 is more than double the number reported the previous year, which is the worst result to date. Due to the drastic increase in the number of broadband users and others, the recognition of the need for network security has substantially improved.

In the Company's domestic business, as anti-virus products are gradually spreading from large companies to small and medium sized businesses, the number of customers subscribing to "Virus Buster Corporate Edition" and "ServerProtect" are steadily increasing. In addition, accompanied by the increase in the cases of virus damage via e-mail, the sales of the "InterScan" series, anti-virus software based on Internet servers, grew solidly. The sales of package products in the retail market exceeded the company's estimate due to the timely release of the new product "Virus Buster 2002" when malicious viruses were rampant during the second half of the year. Regarding the VirusWall E-Mail Service (formally-known as Internet Outsourcing Service) which provides anti-virus measures as a service through alliances with ISPs (Information Service Providers), also, services provided by large ISPs such as @Nifty or OCN became well under way and the number of customers are rapidly increasing for the same reason as above.

As for the business developments in North America and Europe, the sales of products for relatively large customers, mostly anti-virus products for high-level networks, such as "InterScan" series or "ScanMail" series, showed a steady growth.

Large corporate customers are concerned with not only the performance of the anti-virus software itself, but also the quality of the support provided by a vender during the software license term. Therefore, they select a vender in the viewpoint of how promptly it can provide a response to a threat of a new virus infection. We have taken advantage of being specialized in the anti-virus business and have already started to provide our customers with "Premium Support Service." This service guarantees support quality ahead of other U.S. competitors. In line with the increasing demand for anti-virus measures for network storage, "ServerProtect for EMC Celerra" and "ServerProtect for Network Appliance," have been added as new products of the "ServerProtect" series.

As a result, the sales for the 2001 fiscal year totaled JPY 18,454 million (up 95.8% compared to 2000), the ordinary income totaled JPY 7,589 million (up 199.5% compared to 2000) and the net income totaled 393 million (down 80.7% compared to 2000).

(2) Facility Investment

The total facility investment for the 2001 fiscal year was JPY 545 million, which was mainly made in equipment necessary for the development of new technologies and the streamlining of the core business.

(3) Fund Raising

The Company issued the 6th round of unsecured bonds (with detachable stock-purchase warrants) of JPY 5,000 million, specifying the due date of payment as March 19, 2001, the 7th round of unsecured bonds (with detachable stock-purchase warrants) of JPY 1,500 million, specifying the due date of payment as June 4, 2001 and the 8th round of unsecured bonds (with detachable stock-purchase warrants) of JPY 6,000 million, specifying the due date of payment as November 19, 2001.

(4) Future projections

Caused mainly by worsened business confidence in North America and Europe, corporate investments in IT have begun to show a sluggish growth. The Company's business environment is not very optimistic, influenced by these reductions in IT investments. However, today as many companies are depending more on networks, including mail systems, the scope of opportunity loss in the case of an internal system being down is becoming an overwhelmingly large amount of money compared to several years ago. Therefore, network security measures, including anti-virus measures, will be more important in the future. In this market environment in which steady expansion can be projected in the long and medium terms, the Company recognizes its business challenge to maintain its competitive advantage over major U.S. competitors. Setting as its goals the enhancement of distribution channels, the improvement of company recognition (brand power), and product development based on the customer's needs, the Company, as a corporate group including the U.S corporation, the Europe corporations, the Taiwanese corporation, etc., will endeavor to expand its share in domestic and overseas markets in the future.

Notes to Financial Statements

1. Significant Accounting Policies

(1) Standards and methods for the valuation of securities

.. Subsidiary Stocks: Calculated by the cost method, subject to the moving average method

.. Other Securities

Securities having market prices: Calculated by the market price method based on market prices, etc. as of the last day of the fiscal year (Differences from estimates are accounted for by the comprehensive capital inclusion method, and sales costs are calculated by the moving average method.)

Securities having no market prices: Calculated by the cost method, subject to the moving average method

(Additional Information)

Starting from this fiscal year, the Company has adopted the accounting standards for financial products, as set forth in the "Opinion on the Establishment of Accounting standards for Financial Products," dated January 22, 1999, submitted by the Business Accounting Council. Consequently, compared to the calculation by the conventional method, net income has increased by 72,282,000 yen and income before taxes has increased by 72,282,000 yen. Furthermore, due to the change in the valuation method for securities, securities having market prices that are included in the "other securities," have decreased by 25,362,000 yen, and a deferred tax fund of 10,664,000 yen was recognized. Accordingly, a loss of 14,697,000 yen has been accounted for in the Shareholders' Equity section, under the item "difference from the estimates of other securities" (non-conformity with the 21,735,000 yen listed on the balance sheet is due to the conversion of securities in foreign currencies, etc.).

Moreover, the Company has verified the objective of holding the securities that were held as of the beginning of this fiscal term. Starting from this fiscal term, "other securities," which have been previously accounted for as securities in the Current Assets until the previous fiscal year, are now indicated as "investments in securities." Consequently, securities in the Current Assets have decreased by 1,872,475,000 yen, and "investment in securities" has increased by 1,872,475,000 yen.

(2) Standards and methods for the valuation of net credits (and liabilities)

resulting from derivatives

Calculated by the market price
method

(3) Standards and methods for the valuation of inventories

.. Finished goods, works in progress and supplies

Calculated by the cost method, subject to the weighted average cost

(4) Method for the depreciation and amortization of fixed assets

.. Tangible fixed assets

Calculated by the fixed rate method

.. Intangible fixed assets

Software for market sale:

Calculated by the fixed amount
method, based on an expected effective period (12 months)

Software for internal use:

Calculated by the fixed amount
method, based on an expected internal use period (5 years)

Others intangible fixed assets:

Calculated by the fixed amount
method

.. Long-term prepaid expenses

Calculated by the fixed amount
method

(5) Accounting method for deferred assets

Expenses for issuing new stocks or bonds are fully recorded as expenses when incurred.

(6) Accounting policies for allowances and reserves

.. Allowances for doubtful receivables:

In order to prepare for the future losses from bad debts, allowances for general receivables are provided according to the historical ratio of bad debts. As for specific receivables, such as doubtful

Edgar Filing: TREND MICRO INC - Form 6-K

receivables, the collectibility of the respective receivables are determined, and the amounts that are expected as not collectible are provided.

Starting from this fiscal year, the Company has adopted the accounting standards for financial products, as set forth in the "Opinion on the establishment of accounting standards for financial products," dated January 22, 1999, submitted by the Business Accounting Council. Consequently, the standards for providing allowances for bad debts have been changed. (Regarding general receivables, such standards have been changed from legal provision rate to historical ratio of bad debts). However, this has little effect on the Company's profits and losses.

.. Allowances for sales return:

In order to prepare for the estimated losses from goods returned after the fiscal year-end, "allowances for sales return" are calculated, based on the historical ratio of returned goods.

. Reserve for retirement allowances:

In order to prepare for the payment of retirement allowances to employees, an amount expected to accrue as of the current fiscal year-end has been provided for. Such amount is based on the estimated amount of retirement allowance liabilities as of the current fiscal year-end.

An amount of 106,581,000 yen, i.e., the difference accrued upon the change of sales recording standards, has been comprehensively calculated as expenses, and fully recorded as extraordinary expenses.

(Additional information)
Starting from this fiscal year, the Company has adopted the accounting standards for financial products, as set forth in the "Opinion on the establishment of accounting standards for the payment of retirement allowances," dated June 16, 1998, submitted by the Business Accounting Council. Consequently, compared to the calculation by the conventional method, retirement allowance expenses have increased by 143,808,000 yen and net income has decreased by 35,539,000 yen and income before taxes has decreased by 142,121,000 yen. The conventional "accrued severance indemnities" are included in the "reserve for retirement allowances" and indicated as such.

(7) Standards for conversion of assets and liabilities into foreign currencies

Monetary credits and liabilities in foreign currencies have been converted into yen by the spot exchange rate as of the last day of the current fiscal year, and differences resulting from such conversion have been calculated as profits or losses.

(Additional Information)

Starting from this fiscal year, the Company has adopted the amended accounting standards for transactions in foreign currencies, etc., as set forth in the "Opinion on the amendment of accounting standards for transactions in foreign currencies, etc.," dated October 22, 1999, submitted by the Business Accounting Council. This has no effect on the Company's profits and losses.

(8) Method for accounting lease transactions

Finance lease transactions, other than those considered to involve the transfer of ownership for the related leased assets, are accounted for by the same method as regular operating leases.

(9) Method for accounting of consumption tax or the like

Transactions subject to consumption tax or local consumption tax are stated as the net amount excluding related taxes.

(10) Accounting of compensatory warrants and stock options granted to directors and certain employees

The Company has introduced an incentive plan, in which the Company issues bonds with detachable stock-purchase warrants and repurchases such stock warrants and distributes them to directors and certain employees.

Compensation expenses related to this incentive plan are recorded as of the grant of the repurchased stock warrants to directors and employees, at the repurchase value thereof. Furthermore, the warrant portions within the bonds with detachable stock-purchase warrants are recorded in the "warrants" account in the Current Liabilities when they are issued; subsequently, they are transferred from the "warrants" account to the "legal capital surplus" account at the time of the payment of the exercise value upon the exercise of the warrants.

Furthermore, starting from this fiscal year, the Company has introduced for directors and certain employees an incentive plan that is based on the stock option system (warrant method) pursuant to Article 280-19, Paragraph

Edgar Filing: TREND MICRO INC - Form 6-K

2 of the Commercial Code. Moreover, compensation expenses are not recorded in such plan, and no accounting is performed in relation thereto.

- (11) Change in the standards for recording sales related to post-contract

customer support services

The software product license agreements executed between the Company and its customers in relation to the sale of the software products usually include provisions on the post-contract customer support services, which consist of the customer support services, product upgrades and virus pattern file upgrades, etc. performed for a certain period of time after the grant of license.

According to the conventional accounting method adopted by the Company, the total contract amounts, including compensation for post-contract customer support services, were comprehensively added, upon the licensing of products (delivery of the products). Starting from this fiscal year, the Company has changed to an accounting method in which the compensation for post-contract customer support services are separately determined and deferred at the time of the licensing of the products as the "short-term deferred revenue" account of the Current Liabilities and the "long-term deferred revenue" account of the Fixed Liabilities, so that said compensation is equally recorded throughout the contracted supporting term.

The sales accounting standards were changed because the compensation for post-contract customer support services tended to increase within the total contract amount of the software products sold by the Company, such that there was increased importance of such compensation. The sales accounting standards were changed for the purpose of ensuring appropriate profit/loss calculations for the period by reasonably accounting for such revenue in correspondence with related expenses.

As a result of the change in the sales recording standard, if the amended accounting method is adopted by the Company, sales in the amount of 2,800,962,000 yen, i.e., the post-contract customer support services portion corresponding to the deferred revenue from previous fiscal year, processed at the beginning of this fiscal year, are to be recorded as "loss on prior year adjustment due to change in the sales recording standard" in the Extraordinary Profits and Losses. Consequently, compared to calculation by the conventional method, the sales, the operating income and the net income for the current fiscal year have respectively decreased by 2,284,871,000 yen, and the income before taxes has decreased by 5,085,833,000 yen.

- (12) In the stated values, fractions less than 1,000 yen are rounded down.

2. Change in the method of indication

Starting from this fiscal year, the provided amount (reduced amount) for the "allowances for sales return," which had been independently indicated, is included within the "sales." The amount provided for "allowances for sales return," subtracted from the sales, is 217,648,000 yen.

3. Additional Information

Starting from this fiscal year, the "treasury stocks" (22,063,000 yen as of the year-end), which had been indicated as an independent item in the Current Liabilities, are indicated in the Shareholders' Equity section as an item deducted from the Shareholders' Equity, in accordance with the amendment of regulations on documents required under the Commercial Code.

- (b) Stock option method based on Article 280-19, Paragraph 2 of the Commercial Code

Type of stocks issued	Common stocks
Balance of total issue value of stocks issued upon the exercise of warrant:	4,109,760,000 yen
Issue value of stocks issued upon the exercise of warrant:	5,760 yen

- (5) Treasury Bonds

The Company has issued unsecured bonds with detachable stock-purchase warrants for the purpose of providing or assigning them to directors and certain employees of the Company and its subsidiaries. In accordance with the proviso of Article 341-8, Paragraph 4 of the Commercial Code, the redemption or extinguishment of such bonds is prohibited when the total issue value of the bonds is less than the total issue value of the stocks related to unexercised warrants.

In order to reduce the interest on the bonds, the Company repurchases from the market a part of the outstanding bonds after the warrants are detached. The repurchased bonds are to be held until the treasury bonds can be legally redeemed.

Nonetheless, the "bonds" account and the "treasury bonds" account are mutually set off and respectively listed on the balance sheet in the following manner, because this has substantially the same effect as the redemption of bonds. The difference between the repurchase value and the balance sheet treasury bond value at the time of the repurchase is recorded as the "loss on repurchase of treasury bonds" in the Extraordinary Profits and Losses.

	Current Liabilities	Fixed Liabilities
Bonds	3,800,000,000 yen	17,500,000,000 yen
Treasury bonds	(800,000,000 yen)	(6,000,000,000 yen)
	3,000,000,000 yen	11,500,000,000 yen

- (6) Retirement allowances

- (i) Summary of the retirement allowance plan adopted by the Company

Under the Company's retirement allowance plan, a defined lump-sum retirement allowance plan is provided. Furthermore, the Company is a member of the Tokyo small size computer software industry employee pension fund (tokyoto kogata computa sofutouea sangyo kosei nennkin kikin).

- (ii) Issues related to lump sum retirement allowances

In accordance with Article 2 of the "Law for Special Measures under the Commercial Code with respect to Auditing etc of Joint Stock Corporations", we have examined the balance sheet, the related profit and loss statement, the business report (accounting figures only included therein) and the statement of proposed appropriation of retained earnings, and the related supplementary statements of account (accounting figures only included therein) of Trend Micro Incorporated for the 13th fiscal period from 1 January, 2001 to 31 December, 2001. Accounting figures contained in the business report and the supplementary statements of account, which were subject to our examination, are those based on the accounting books and records.

Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and included such auditing procedures as normally required. Such auditing procedures also included those applied on the statutory accounts in the subsidiaries of Trend Micro Incorporated, which we considered necessary.

As a result of our examination of the above mentioned financial documents, our opinion is as follows:

Accordingly, we found the above proper.
- (3) The business report (accounting figures only included therein) presents fairly the Company's affairs in conformity with the applicable regulations and the Articles of Incorporation.
- (4) The statement of proposed appropriation of retained earnings is presented in conformity with the applicable regulations and the

Item 1: Proposed Appropriation of Retained Earnings for the 13th Fiscal Period

For details, please refer to the attachment (page.).

The Company has smoothly expanded its scope of operations in the past several years. However, the Internet security related market has just reached the full-scale stage of expansion and, as compared with other U.S. competitors, the Company's share of the market in the world scale has not yet reached a stable level. Also in terms of the corporate scale, the Company's competitors can commit more management resources to the Internet security business than the Company can.

Moreover, due to the effect of the fact that the Company's business area is specialized in a more limited market in the Internet security market, that is, primarily relating to anti-virus measures and contents securities, there is a possibility that earnings may become volatile in a short term, as compared with the competitors which are engaged in more than one business area.

In consideration of the above-described business environment and the Company's individual factors, the Company recognizes that in order to maintain its competitiveness against the competitors, a stable balance sheet, enhancement of managerial foundation, and active operations are important management challenges. We consider that we should give precedence to sufficiently increasing retained earnings without paying any dividends for the time being. Accordingly, we would appreciate it very much if you could understand that we will not distribute dividends as profit sharing for this fiscal period.

We plan to make full use of the retained earnings fund as a source for the investment in the research and development area that, the Company considers, should be enhanced still further, and for the improvement of our brand recognition in North America and Europe.

Item 2: Purchase of Treasury Shares

We request that in accordance with the provisions of Article 210 of the Commercial Code, the purchase of 5,000,000 common shares of the Company be approved to the extent of purchase prices in the total amount of 5.7 billion yen (Yen5,700,000,000) during a period from the conclusion of this general meeting of shareholders to the conclusion of the ordinary general meeting of shareholders for the next period.

Item 3: Partial Modifications of the Articles of Incorporation
