ITEM 2.05 COSTS ASSOCIATED WITH EXIT OR DISPOSAL ACTIVITIES.

On December 15, 2014, Navistar International Corporation (the Company) announced its plan to close its foundry operations in Indianapolis, Indiana (the Indianapolis foundry) in the summer of 2015. The plan is part of the Company's continued effort to reduce costs and invest in its core North America truck and parts businesses. The Indianapolis foundry manufactures engine blocks and heads for its proprietary engines. The Company will source the engine blocks and heads being produced at the Indianapolis foundry from the supply base.

As a result of the planned closure of the Indianapolis foundry, the Company incurred pre-tax charges of $11 million, which consist of charges of $8 million for employee separation and other pension and post retirement contractual termination benefits, and $3 million for inventory reserves and other-related charges. Approximately $2 million of these restructuring charges will result in future cash outlays. In addition, the Company anticipates up to $40 million in additional charges for accelerated depreciation related to the closure of the Indianapolis foundry and related impacts during the first half of 2015.
